

Members only training course in New Jersey!

The IICL and its members met for two days in New Jersey, USA on April 9 & 10, to participate in an IICL dry van & refrigerated container training course. Participants from various members' non-technical departments and various backgrounds joined us to learn more about the history of containerization, do's and don'ts of container use, safety, inspections, repairs, how containers are built, and more. Feedback received suggests more events like this will take place in the future, especially for new individuals joining our members and colleagues working in non-technical departments. Carrier technicians and IICL Technical Committee members participated in the training and presentations.
